①
The first thing I noticed when I stepped out of the train was the cold. It was a sharp, biting cold that seized my lungs and numbed my fingers. I shivered as I walked
towards the station entrance.
The air was thick with fog, and the ground was covered in a layer of
ice. I could see my breath in the air, and the sound of my footsteps
echoed on the frozen pavement.
I felt alone and
vulnerable in this
desolate landscape.

The cold was
a constant reminder
of the harsh winter
that had set in.
I wrapped my coat
tightly around me
and tried to ignore
the pain in my fingers. The station
was empty, and the only sound was the distant hum of a
train. I felt a sense of isolation and
longing for home.
